

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Report of Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 17, 1890.

To the Honorable JAMES E. CAMPBELL, Governor of Ohio:

I hereby report to your Excellency, as required by law, the annual statement giving the proceedings of the Department of State for the year ending November 15, 1890.

RELATING TO CORPORATIONS.

Next to the preservation of the public records and laws, the most important duty of the Secretary of State relates to the creation of corporations. Their continued increase in Ohio, both in number and aggregate amount of capital stock, plainly shows that the corporation as a method and institution is the favored one in this State for the transaction of business. During the past year there have been filed in this department 1,219 certificates of incorporation, being 26 more than last year. In detail these corporations, in number and class, are as follows:

Banks and savings and loan associations, 29; building and loan associations, 75; cemetery associations, 11; churches and church societies, 108; colleges, libraries, and literary societies, 21; co-operative companies, 7; electric light and power companies, 22; gas and oil companies, 41; insurance companies, 7; manufacturing companies, 339; mining companies, 19; printing and publishing companies, 37; railroad companies, 37; benevolent, political, social and mutual societies, 341; street railroad companies, 15; telegraph companies, 1; miscellaneous, 109.

In addition to these there were filed 599 certificates of subscription of stock, 33 changing name of corporations, 28 relating to municipal corporations, and 29 miscellaneous certificates.

The original and increased stock of corporations for this year exceeds that of last year by $26,323,495, and is the greatest amount ever certified to this department in the history of the State. The following table shows an interesting comparison on this subject of this year with the four years last past:

FEES AND LITIGATION.

Under the operation of the "Massie Law," passed February 12, 1889; the fees paid to the State through this office continue to increase. The statement showing the amount collected through this department since 1884, is as follows:

The litigation concerning the constitutionality of the law under which these fees are collected is still undetermined in the courts, and of the above amount collected during the past year the sum of $110,892 has been retained in my hands under orders of the court, and by virtue of being paid under protest, until the final decision is made. In addition to the above amount there is in my hands of the collections of last year, and retained by the same orders, the sum of $57,999.30, making a total of $168,891.30 in my hands awaiting the decision of the courts. If the law is declared unconstitutional, said amounts will be returned to the parties paying the same, and if sustained it will be paid into the State.

* From 1803 to 1850 the Secretary of State was elected by the General Assembly.

† The Democratic party of to-day claims lineal descent from the first Republican party, with President Jefferson as its founder. Authorities differ as to the date when the party dropped the name Republican and assumed that of Democrat, it being ascribed to various dates between 1806 and 1820.

‡ Political parties were disorganized at the time of the election of John Q. Adams. He claimed to be a Republican as Jefferson, but his doctrines were decidedly federalistic. The opposition to his administration took the name of Democrat, and elected Jackson President in 1828.

There were re-valuations of real property of the State for the years 1826, 1835, 1841 1847, 1854, 1861, 1871 and 1881.

NOTE—Prior to 1826, real estate only was brought upon the duplicate for taxation for State purposes. Funds for county purposes were derived from a poll-tax, and a tax upon horses, mules and cattle, to which was added, by legislative appropriation, a percentage from one-fifth to one-half, varying with the several years, from the taxes levied upon real estate.

Under the act of February 3, 1825, which took effect March 1, 1826, all taxable property was placed upon the grand duplicate, viz.: land and town lots, including buildings, horses, catt'e, pleasure carriages, over the value of one hundred dollars, and merchants' and brokers' capital, to which was added, "money loaned at interest," and "all grist, oil and saw-mills; all manufactories of iron, glass, paper, clocks and nails all distilleries, breweries and tanneries; all iron, brass and copper foundries," under act of March 14, 1831.

Under the act of March 2, 1846, a new system of taxation was inaugurated, which with various slight modifications, is now in force.

The total does not include the per capita tax on dogs, which amounted in 1890, to $225,422.

Taken by the Federal Government in 1890.

ALSO A

SUMMARY OF THE CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES.

From Advance Reports furnished by ROBERT P. PORTER, SUPERINTENDENT OF CENSUS.

1 Ap. s.s.

NOTE.

By the courtesy of Hon. Robert P. Porter, Superintendent of the Eleventh Census, I am enabled to present to the people of Ohio, in advance of the publication by the Government, the full and complete census returns of the State. The following pages have been compiled at Washington. None of the matter is original with this department, excepting the chart showing the relative progress of the States in population. I desire, however, to call attention to the early publication of these returns as being placed before the public at least a year and a half earlier than any previous census.

DANIEL J. RYAN.

Secretary of State.

THE CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES.

The eleventh census of the United States was taken under an act of Congress, approved March 1, 1889. The official count of the people under this act has been consummated in shorter time than ever before in the history of the country. The enumeration for 1870 was not completed until August 23d of the year following. The tenth census (1880) was practically completed March 4, 1881. The eleventh census (1890) was completed in exactly two months and nineteen days after the date of commencement of enumeration, exceeding all others preceding it in rapidity and brevity in time of completion.

The following table exhibits the verified and official population of the United States on June 1, 1890:

REPORT OF SECRETARY OF STATE

RECAPITULATION.

THE UNITED STATES.....	62,622,250
North Atlantic division.....	17,401,545
South Atlantic division.....	8,857,920
Northern Central division.....	22,362,279
Southern Central division.....	10,972,893
Western division.....	3,027,613

As shown by the final count of persons and families, exclusive of white persons in the Indian Territory, Indians on reservations and Alaska, this makes a total population of 62,622,250. If we include the persons excepted above, the population will reach in round numbers 63,000,000. In 1880 the population was 50,155,783. The increase of population in the ten years intervening was 12,466,467, making a percentage of increase in the ten years of 24.86 per cent.

Below is presented a table which shows in detail the population of States and Territories in 1890, 1880 and 1870; the numerical increase in each state between 1860 and 1870; between 1870 and 1880, and between 1880 and 1890, together with the corresponding percentages of increase. This table is of interest, as it gives at a glance the relative growth and development of the different States in the Union. It will be observed in this table that the States are grouped as North Atlantic, South Atlantic, Northern Central, Southern Central and Western. This grouping is not an arbitrary arrangement of the Census Department, but it is a perfectly natural one, and the development and individuality of the States are better brought out by certain characteristic features of their grouping, which adds interest to the table and forms the basis of arrangement.

The North Atlantic is primarily a manufacturing section. As a necessary result of the predominance of manufacturing there is a great development of urban population. Indeed, more than half of the inhabitants are grouped in cities.

The predominant industry of the Northern Central States is agriculture, although in many of these States manufactures are now acquiring prominence. The industries of the South Atlantic and Southern Central sections are still almost entirely agricultural, while in the Western States and Territories the leading industries are agriculture, mining and grazing.

In the course of the settlement and development of a country the industries commonly follow one another in a certain order. After the hunter, trapper and prospector, who are commonly the pioneers, the herdsman follows, and for a time the raising of cattle is the leading industry. As settlement becomes less sparse, this is followed by agriculture, which in its turn, as the population becomes more dense, is succeeded by manufactures, and, as a consequence, the aggregation of the people in cities. We see in this country all stages of this progress.

In Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont the rate of increase between 1870 and 1880 has not quite been maintained, probably due to the fact of a large migration of the farming population to the far west, and manufactures not having yet assumed sufficient prominence. In Vermont there has been only a trifling increase of population.

In the other States of this subdivision, with the exception of Rhode Island, viz., Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, manufactures have assumed so great prominence that they have not only sufficed to maintain the former rate of increase, but even to increase it. The rate in Massachusetts has increased from 22 to 26 per cent., in Connecticut from 16 to 20, in New York from 16 to 18, in New Jersey from 25 to 28, and in Pennsylvania from 22 to 23. It will be seen, furthermore, that this augmentation of the rate of increase is greater in the more easterly States than in the three western ones above mentioned, owing to the fuller development of manufacturing industries.

Turning to the table showing the results of the State censuses, it appears that during the first half of the last decade the rate of increase in Massachusetts was below the average of the decade, while in the last half it was much greater, a fact which indicates either that the rate of increase declined materially in the first half of the decade, or that the State enumeration was much less complete than that of the federal enumeration in 1890. The case is somewhat similar in Rhode Island, although not in so marked a degree, the rates of increase between 1880 and 1885 and between 1885 and 1890 being respectively 10 and 13.5 per cent. In New Jersey the rate of increase seems to have been maintained quite uniformly throughout the decade.

In the Northern Central group of States various conditions prevail. In Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri, and in Illinois, if the city of Chicago be dropped from consideration, the rate of increase has declined very decidedly. In Ohio it has fallen from 20 to 15 per cent.; in Indiana from 18 to 11; in Iowa from 36 to 18; in Missouri from 26 to 24 per cent., in spite of the rapid growth of Saint Louis and Kansas City, and in Illinois, dropping Chicago from consideration, from 14.9 to 5.9 per cent. In these States the agricultural industry, which is still the prominent one, has begun to decline, owing to the sharp competition of western farms. The farming population has migrated westward, and the growth of manufactures is not yet sufficiently rapid to repair these losses. The southern portions of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota are under similar conditions, but the northern parts of these States, lying upon the frontier of settlement, have filled up with sufficient rapidity to repair either wholly or in part the losses of the southern parts. Michigan increased at the rate of 38 per cent. between 1870 and 1880, while between 1880 and 1890 the rate was but 28 per cent. The increase between 1880 and 1890 was cut into unequal parts by the State census taken in 1884. In the first four years of the decade the increase was 13.2 per cent., while in the last six years it was 13 per cent. As the rate of increase in this State is declining, the State census taken in 1884 corroborates the federal census of 1890. In Wisconsin the last decade shows an increase of 28 per cent., as against an increase of 25 per cent. in the decade between 1870 and 1880. The State census of Wisconsin, taken in 1885, cuts the decade into two equal parts, and shows an increase during the first half of 18.8 per cent., and during the second half of but 7.9 per cent.

Minnesota increased 78 per cent. between 1870 and 1880, and 67 per cent. between 1880 and 1890, the numerical increase being over half a million in the past decade. The State census, taken in 1885, shows that the bulk of this increase occurred between 1880 and 1885. The numerical increase during the first five years was 337,025, and the rate of increase 43 per cent., while during the last half of the decade the numerical increase was 184,028, and the rate of increase 16.5 per cent.

During the past ten years the population of Dakota, considering the two States of North Dakota and South Dakota together, has increased from 135,177 to 511,527, or 278 per cent.; Nebraska from 452,402 to 1,058,910, or 134 per cent., and Kansas from 996,096 to 1,427,096, or 43 per cent. The rate of increase, has not however, continued uniformly throughout the decade. In 1885 Dakota contained 415,610 inhabitants, or more than four-fifths of its present population. Nebraska contained 740,645 inhabitants in the same year, thus dividing the numerical increase quite equally between the two halves of the decade, but leaving the greater per centage of increase in the first half. In the same year Kansas by its State census had 1,268,530 inhabitants, showing that nearly two-thirds of the numerical gain was acquired during the first half of the decade. The industries of these States are almost purely agricultural, and are dependent on the supply of moisture, either in the form of rain or by irrigation. Through these States passes what is known as the sub-humid belt, a strip of country several degrees in width, in which during rainy years there is an abundance of moisture for the needs of crops, while in the years when the rainfall is below the average the supply is deficient. In this region little provision has been made for artificial irrigation, the settlers having thus far been content to depend upon rainfall. Into this region the settlers flocked in large numbers in the early years of the decade, drawn thither by the fertility of the land and by the fact that for a few years the rainfall had been sufficient for the needs of agriculture. During the past two or three years, however, the conditions of rainfall have materially changed. It has fallen decidedly below the normal, and the settlers have thereby been forced to emigrate. Thousands of families have abandoned this region and gone to Oklahoma and the Rocky Mountain region. This migration is well shown in the progress of Kansas, as indicated by its annual censuses. These censuses show a rapid increase in population from 1880 up to 1887; 1888 shows but a slight increase over 1887, while 1889 shows a reduction in the population, leading up to the further reduction shown by the federal census in 1890.

Throughout the South Atlantic and Southern Central States the rate of increase has diminished, and in most of these States it has diminished very materially. A certain reduction in the percentage of increase, especially in the eastern part of this region, was to be expected, due not only to the operation of general laws, but also to the fact that there has been considerable migration from the States east of the Mississippi river to the westward and but little immigration. Taken together, however, these two causes by no means account for the reduction in the rate of increase in these States. The real cause is to be found in the imperfections of the census of 1870. These imperfections resulted in giving a comparatively low rate of increase between 1860 and 1870 and an exaggerated increase between 1870 and 1880.

It is but reasonable to suppose that in these States, which were ravaged by war from 1861 to 1865, the rate of increase in the decade which includes the war period should be less than a normal one. Of all these States Virginia, whose soil was the principal theater of the war, must have suffered most severely, and during the period in question it increased at the rate of but 4.4 per cent. Next to Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee suffered the most severely, and yet they increased, respectively, 14 and 13 per cent. On the other hand, North Carolina, which suffered less severely, gained but 8 per cent., and South Carolina, which suffered less in comparison with Virginia, apparently remained at a standstill as regards population. Georgia gained 12 per cent., while Alabama and Louisiana gained but 3 per cent. and Mississippi but 5, although they were comparatively remote from active operations, and suffered relatively little from the ravages of war. On the other hand, those States which suffered the most severely from the war have made during the decade between 1870 and 1880 the smallest proportion of gain of the southern States, whereas the reverse should have been the case. Thus Virginia gained 23 per cent., Kentucky 25, and Tennessee 23, while the States that were farther removed from active operations were North Carolina, which gained 31; South Carolina, 41; Georgia, 30; Alabama, 27; Mississippi, 37, and Louisiana 29 per cent. These startling discrepancies can be due only to the imperfections of the census of 1870, which were, as has been demonstrated, greatest in South Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina, although they were not by any means wanting in Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The industries of these two sections are almost purely agricultural. During the past ten years manufactures have obtained a slight footing and mining has made considerable growth in the mountain regions, but these causes have thus far produced but a comparatively trifling movement of population. The urban population, although great in proportion to that which existed formerly, is very small in proportion to the rural population of the region.

During the first half of the last decade Florida had a rapid growth. The population between 1880 and 1885 increased 73,058, or at the rate of 27 per cent. This rapid growth, however, received a serious check in 1887 and 1888 by an epidemic of yellow fever and by severe frosts. The growth since 1885 has, therefore, been comparatively slow.

Arkansas has continued to grow at a rapid rate, having increased 41 per cent. in the last ten years. Taxes also has increased with great rapidity, the numerical increase of its population being 643,774, or 40.4 per cent.

In the western section the conditions of growth have been very varied. In the earlier years of the decade the discovery of valuable silver and copper mines in the mountains of Montana in the neighborhood of Butte have drawn to that State a large immigration, which is engaged not only in mining but in developing the rich agricultural resources. Wyoming has continued to grow with accelerated rapidity.

The census of Colorado in 1880 was taken on the top wave of a mining excitement, which had filled its mountains with miners, prospectors and speculators, increasing its population enormously, especially in the mountainous country. The census of the State taken in 1885 was, on a superficial view, very surprising. It showed that most of the mining counties had lost population during the five years preceding. This loss was, however, more than made up by the growth of its cities and its agricultural counties. The census of 1890 shows still further reduction of population in the mining regions of the State and an extraordinary development of its urban population and its farming element. New Mexico, Arizona and Utah show rates of increase which are small when the sparsely settled condition of these territories is considered, while Nevada shows an absolute diminution of population of 16,505, or 26.5 per cent., leaving it the smallest of all the States. This condition of things is a natural result of the failure of the Comstock and other mines, work upon which has practically ceased. Idaho has increased its population two and a half times. Its prosperity is mainly due to its mines, although people are now turning to agriculture in considerable numbers.

The growth of Washington has been phenomenal, the population in 1890 being nearly five times that of 1880. As is shown by the State census taken in 1885, this growth has been almost entirely during the last five years of the decade. The inducements which have attracted settlers are in the main its fertile soil and ample rainfall, which enable farming to be carried on without irrigation over almost the entire State. The growth of Oregon, though less rapid, has been at a rate of nearly 80 per cent. during the past decade. The numerical increase has been 138,999, of which over four-fifths has been acquired during the past five years. The additions to its population are mainly in the valleys of the Columbia and Willamette rivers.

California, which increased 54 per cent. during the decade between 1870 and 1880 has maintained during the past decade a rate of increase of 39.7 per cent. This increase, though widespread throughout the State, has been most marked in its great cities and in the southern part.

A CHART OF PROGRESS.

The accompanying chart, prepared for this report, shows the relative growth of the States of the Union from 1790 to 1890, especial prominence being given to Ohio. The struggle of the States for their place in each census is graphically shown, together with their rank and population. Each State takes its place in the chart at the commencement of the decade in which its territorial existence commenced and its boundaries were defined. Ohio, for instance, although admitted in 1803, enters the chart in 1800.

The contrast taken from this chart shows remarkable and wonderful results in the past hundred years. It will be seen that, as in 1880, New York still heads the list, and is followed by Pennsylvania. Ohio and Illinois have exchanged places. Of the other changes in the list, the most marked are those of Texas, which rises from No. 11 to No. 7; Kentucky, which drops from 8 to 11; Minnesota, which rises from 26 to 20; Nebraska, which rises from 30 to 26; Maryland, which drops from 23 to 27; Colorado, which rises from 35 to 31; Vermont, which drops from 32 to 36; Washington, which rises from 42 to 34; Delaware, which drops from 38 to 42; Nevada, which drops from 43 to 49, and Arizona, which drops from 44 to 48. The average change in rank is 2.2 places.

In contrasting the different positions of the States in 1790 and 1890, we can see that the century has wrought a wonderful result. Virginia, which 100 years ago stood first in the list of population, drops to 15. Pennsylvania has held her own in the century better than any of the States enumerated in the first census. With the exception of 30 years, from 1800 to 1830, she has been second in population in the Union. New York, which in 1790 was the fifth State in population, gained steadily during the first three decades, and from 1820 to 1890 held steadily her place as the first in population. The striking descent has been Maryland, which from 6 in 1790 drops steadfastly and continuously to 27 in 1890. Ohio's most rapid increase was made between 1800 and 1820, and for 40 years, from 1840 to 1880, held her place as the third State in the Union. The New England States, as a rule, have lost their standing in the chart of States. New Hampshire, for instance, dropping from 10 in 1790 to 33 in 1890, and Maine from 11 in 1790 to 30 in 1890. In the same way Connecticut drops from 8 to 29 and Vermont from 13 to 36.

THE CENSUS OF OHIO.

In the collection of the census returns for the State of Ohio, the State was divided into eight districts, as follows:

First District—Allen, Crawford, Defiance, Fulton, Hancock, Henry, Lucas, Ottawa, Paulding, Putnam, Sandusky, Seneca, Van Wert, Williams, Wood and Wyandot counties.

Second District—Auglaize, Champaign, Clarke, Darke, Greene, Hardin, Logan, Mercer, Miami, Montgomery, Preble and Shelby counties.

Third District—Butler, Clermont, Clinton, Hamilton and Warren counties.

Fourth District—Adams, Brown, Gallia, Highland, Hocking, Jackson, Lawrence, Pike, Ross, Scioto and Vinton counties.

Fifth District—Delaware, Fairfield, Fayette, Franklin, Knox, Licking, Madison, Marion, Morrow, Perry, Pickaway and Union counties.

Sixth District—Ashland, Cuyahoga, Erie, Holmes, Huron, Lorain, Medina, Richland and Wayne counties.

Seventh District—Athens, Belmont, Coshocton, Guernsey, Harrison, Meigs, Monroe, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble and Washington counties.

Eighth District—Ashtabula, Carroll, Columbiana, Geauga, Jefferson, Lake, Mahoning, Portage, Stark, Summit, Trumbull and Tuscarawas counties.

These districts were under the management of supervisors, to whom the returns of the enumerators were made. Supervisors of the eleventh federal census for Ohio, with their addresses, are as follows:

First District—Isaac M. Kirby, Upper Sandusky, Wyandot county.

Second District—John Devor, Greenville, Darke county.

Third District—Lot Wright, Custom House, Cincinnati.

Fourth District—Mark Sternberger, Jackson, Jackson county.

Fifth District—Samuel H. Peterman, Mount Vernon, Knox county.

Sixth District—Thomas M. Beer, Ashland, Ashland county.

Seventh District—James P. Wood, Athens, Athens county.

Eighth District—William Grinnel, South Walnut street, Ravenna, Portage county.

In the following pages will be found a complete census enumeration of the State by counties and by minor civil divisions.

Table No. 1 shows the comparison of population between the various counties in 1880 and 1890, with the increase or decrease, as the case may be, together with the area in square miles.

Table No. 2 contains a recapitulation of all the censuses taken in Ohio, commencing with the second census in 1800 and closing with the eleventh census in 1890.

Table No. 3 contains the population by minor geographical divisions, showing the enumeration of each township, village, ward, precinct or other division, and at the same time shows a comparison with the census of 1880 of each.

Table No. 4 shows the population of incorporated cities and villages, and a comparison with the census of 1880.
